

Colours of Christmas

Sure Christmas is a spiritual time for many, but there's also the material side that most can't ignore

SO whether it's a last-minute gift idea you're after, or you need to style a special festive outfit for the big day's celebrations, you can't go past the colours of Christmas.

Striking silver and gold, rich reds and ravishing greens, and of course the crisp freshness of pure white, all combine for a festive feel.

And since it's the time of year for giving, CoastConfidential is offering one reader a sparkling Christmas Day with the chance to win a $650 jewellery charm.

The Surreal charm can be used on its own or added with others to build a personalised bracelet – the trend of charm bracelets is going strong around the world.

One of the most popular design trends is combining rose and white gold with yellow gold jewellery.

The Surreal Jewellery charm range is produced exclusively in a quality yellow, white and rose gold and the choice of the gold finish does not impact on the cost of the individual pieces.

The majority of Surreal's hand-crafted bracelets, necklets and charms are designed and produced in Australia by experienced jewellers, offering more than 100 designs – with many featuring colourful precious stones and enamel finishes. The complete range is featured on www.surrealjewellery.com, or selected items are on display at Paradise Jewellers at Pacific Fair.

Bracelets are priced from $1495, gold charms start from $115, and jewel encrusted charms are priced from $415.
